

Grieve and Bremner fonds. - 1832 - 1902 (inclusive); 1863 - 1902 (predominant) - 7.5 m textual records

Administrative history

The firm of Grieve and Bremner was formed by Walter Grieve (1809 - 1887) and Alexander Warren Bremner (-1886), establishing at Trinity circa 1863. Grieve had been a partner in Baine, Johnston & Company, but withdrew in 1855 to form Walter Grieve and Company. He subsequently entered into the partnership with Bremner. The firm purchased the Slade property at Trinity, and in 1869 leased the Garland premises from John Bingley Garland, making them the major merchant in Trinity at that time. During the 1860s Walter Grieve lived primarily in Scotland while Alexander W. Bremner managed the firm at Trinity. The firm engaged in all aspects of the trade and maintained a huge inventory of goods at Trinity. Sealing was an important aspect of the firm's business and each year vessels were sent to the ice, under such well known Captains as Richard Ash. The firm maintained close ties with Walter Grieve and Company in St. John's and Walter Grieve of Greenock, who shipped many of the supplies sold at Grieve and Bremner's shop and store. Alexander Bremner died in 1886, followed by W. R. Grieve in 1887, bringing an end to the business. Bremner bequeathed his Catalina premises and property to his sons, Robert S. and Alexander Hugh. With his father's share of the Trinity estate, Robert Sweetland Bremner purchased the Grieve and Bremner premises at Trinity from Grieve's trustees and continued to operate the business until becoming insolvent in 1900.
